

Key Insights

1. Sales showed a positive trend over time, indicating consistent business growth and increasing customer demand.
2. The Technology category emerged as one of the strongest revenue contributors, highlighting its importance to overall business performance.
3. A small group of top-selling products generated a significant portion of total sales, demonstrating the impact of high-performing products on revenue.
4. Regional analysis revealed variations in sales performance, with certain regions contributing more revenue than others, suggesting opportunities for targeted business strategies.
5. The Discount vs Profit analysis showed that higher discounts often resulted in lower profit margins, emphasizing the need for balanced pricing and discount policies.